EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

The Great Storm at Galveston.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 20.—A Times' special, from information obtained from papers and passengers, gives the following news of the storm at Galveston: To briefly summarize the disaster: A gale from the east by Wednesday midday reached such proportions that captains of steamers, accustomed for generations to traverse this portion of the Gulf, declined to put to sea. Almost simultaneously with this determination, came a report that a ship-yard at the extreme east end of the island had been inundated, and men were fleeing for their lives. A rapidly falling barometer indicated an increase of the storm, and the water of the Gulf, which is on the south side of the island and in the rear of the city, gradually commenced to encroach on the gardens of scattered residences bordering on the beach, and soon overflowed them. The water during the day reached a depth of two feet. All day long and during Thursday, it blew a hurricane, pushing the Gulf water over the entire island, and covering even higher elevations to a depth of two feet and a half. This ridge embraces an area of perhaps twelve blocks and extending from Mechanic street to Market, a distance of of two squares latitudinally from Center street to [illegible] avenue, and about six squares longitudinally. In the entire [illegible] east and west ends of the city, the water rose to a sufficient depth to float large wooden edifices, many of which are very valuable. The residence portion of the city was most affected. From Tremont street, where this section begins, for a distance of a mile and a half west, every garden and every foundation is destroyed. Domiciles are scattered promiscuously in the center of thoroughfares, many of them being jammed together. Farther to the west, in the neighborhood of Oleander Park, where there are many small farms and a number of stylish residences, the water is reported to have reached a depth of from six to nine feet. A similar story is told of the eastern end of the island, which extends from Center street a mile. In the business section large stocks of goods are kept on ground floors, and one can estimate the injury which thirty inches of sea water would involve. It is safe to presume that the earnings of the entire year will be exhausted in repairing damages. Probably vegetation has been utterly destroyed, but that the island is involved in wholesale ruin we do not apprehend.

Westervelt Convicted.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—The jury in the Westervelt case returned a verdict of guilty on the last three counts of the indictment. A motion for a new trial has been made.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—The jury in the Westervelt case returned a verdict of guilty on the last three counts of the indictment. As the words fell from the foreman's lips, Westervelt cried aloud and sank down into the dock completely overcome and sobbing like a child. His wife and children joined their cries and lamentations to his, and the scene was a most affecting one. Mr Ford immediately moved for arrest of judgment and a new trial. Judge Elcock has allowed four days for argument. The first two counts, on which the prisoner is acquitted, charge a participation in the actual abduction of Charley Ross. The last three, on which he is convicted, charge a conspiracy to conceal, and guilty knowledge.

The Tilton-Beecher Case Again.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—It is expected that the case of Tilton vs Beecher will be called from the calendar of the city court this afternoon by Judge Reynolds, Mr. Morris, counsel for Tilton, will answer that he is ready.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The case of Tilton vs Beecher, which was No. 19 on the docket, was, by consent of counsel, put over until next term of the court. Tilton's libel suit against the Brooklyn Eagle also went over until next term, by consent.

A Horse Disease.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Within a few days a serious disease has broken out among horses throughout the city. It borders on the nature of the famous epizootic of two years ago. It is calculated that there are 1,000 horses suffering, the symptoms being precisely those manifested when the epizootic first showed itself.

Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 20.—The grand lodge of I. O. O. F. of the United States convened in the grand lodge hall in this city, at 9 A. M. to-day, in annual communication, Grand Sire Durham, of Kentucky, presiding. Representatives are present from all the grand bodies of the several states and territories, and Canada and the Sandwich Islands. The following statistics are from the grand secretary's report, closing Dec. 31st, 1874: Number of state grand lodges, including grand encampments and grand lodges reporting, 84; subordinate lodges, 5,987; subordinate encampments, 1,630; lodge members, [illegible]; encampment members, 83,445.

Insurance Meeting.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The sixth annual session of the convention of National Insurance Companies opened to-day. Hon. Orlow W. Chapman called the body to order. He said they were representatives and guardians of the insured, and everything else should yield to that. Most vigorous measures should be taken to suppress fraudulent insurance companies. Delegates present were: President Orlow W. Chapman, insurance commissioner of New York; Secretary Oliver Pillsbury, of New Hampshire; Samuel H. Raw, of Michigan; General Gustavus W. Smith, of Kentucky; O. T. Welch, of Kansas; J. M. Forster, of Pennsylvania, and Samuel H. Rhodes, of Massachusetts. The chairman instructed delegates to hand their credentials to the executive committee, who would report on them to-morrow. Three vacancies in the executive committee were filled by the election of Messrs. Rhodes, Forster and John A. Stedman, of Connecticut, and it was resolved that the rules governing the body at its last meeting, at Detroit, should govern the proceedings of this meeting. It was also suggested that all persons who wished to address the convention on insurance topics, should confer with the secretary beforehand.

The President goes to Colorado.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 20.—President Grant and family will leave here in a special palace car on Tuesday next and go direct to Colorado.

Colorado Fair.

DENVER, Sept. 20.—The third annual fair opens Tuesday, September 21st, with good prospects of a successful exhibition. The entries of horses for trotting and running are numerous and promise a fine show. The live stock entries exceed those of any former year. Although the grasshoppers have ravaged Colorado during the past season, the show of grain and vegetables will be large and imposing.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

The Turkish Troubles.

KRAGUJEVATZ, Sept. 20.—In compliance with the earnest desire of Prince Milan, deliberations of the committee appointed to consider the address in reply to his speech, will be submitted to the chamber in secret session. Debates in the chamber will also, at the request of the prince, be kept secret. It is not yet known what will be the tone of the address. A Servian newspaper says that the government has received a note from the Sublime Porte, asking if Turkey may rely upon the maintenance of Servian neutrality. The Servian government has not yet replied.

The debate in skupschina on the address in reply to Prince Milan's speech, has commenced. The session is had with closed doors.

KRAGUJEVATZ, Sept. 20.—It is rumored that the address of the Skupschina does not mention the subject of war but a special address to Prince Milan will be proposed wherein the house will ask the government to declare war. It is asserted that the government will leave the initiative to the nation.

Advices from Bosnia report an engagement yesterday between 2,500 insurgents and a Turkish brigade, which resulted in the retreat of the Turks. The insurrection continues to spread.

In the Skupschina to-day, the address in reply to Prince Milan, reported by the committee, was adopted by a vote of 71 yeas to 41 nays. The document simply paraphrases the prince's speech regarding the Turkish troubles and contains no warlike declaration. It will be presented to the prince to-morrow.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—A special from Berlin says the Porte is endeavoring to impress on foreign powers the necessity of fixing a date for the termination of consular mediation with the insurgent camps. The Turkish government, in view of possible military requirements, has ordered the construction of the Sophia Nisch and Banja Luka railway, to be pushed with the utmost dispatch.

A telegram from Vienna expresses the opinion that now the Turks have had time to occupy, in force, the Bosnian frontier, the chances of renewing the insurrection in Bosnia have vanished. The Turks now have a force of 48,000 men concentrated on the frontier of Servia.

Failure of Iron Works.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The Richmond Iron Works, at Stockton-upon-Tees, comprising 25 furnaces and rolling mills, and employing 300 hands, has suspended. The concern is insolvent.

The Carlists Still at It.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Gen. Dorregaray has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Carlist army, and Gen. Tristany Carlist captain general of Catalonia. Headquarters of the Carlists are now near [illegible], in the province of Guipuzcoa. Gen. [illegible] is expected there.

What the King of Holland Says.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 20.—The sessions of the states general were opened to-day by the king. In his speech he said the Acheen war had not been brought to a satisfactory result, but he had every hope touching a speedy and favorable end. He said the constantly disturbed condition of Venezuela had exercised an unfavorable influence at Curacoa, but he hoped negotiations now pending would remove that difficulty.

Proposed Change in the French Election System.

PARIS, Sept. 21.—The Courier de France states that the cabinet have unanimously resolved to propose the abolition of the system of voting by departments. The Courier anticipates in consequence the overthrow of the ministry in November.

The Grain Market.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The Mark Lane Express this evening has the following review of the corn market for the week: The last gatherings of the harvest in the south of England have been well secured. The usual consequence has ensued, and reduction in the price of wheat has been universal, say from one to two shillings per quarter. As our averages, however, are only one shilling and six pence above those of last year, there seems to be little room, on a scanty and poor crop, for further depression; and as money goes begging, it may find profitable vent in the corn trade. The French claim that the growth has exceeded their wants by about three million quarters, but the fact that French farmers are more reluctant than ourselves to give way, confirms the impression that the estimate is erroneous. The Paris market has been steady for flour and fine wheat, though it is about a shilling easier for inferior now in the provinces. There has been very little change on the continent generally. There has been but little movement, the markets in some places in Germany being firmer and in others easier. In Holland prices have only declined a shilling; in Belgium hardly that, but in Hungary, with better supplies, there has been a decline of two shillings per quarter, and the same is true of Denmark. Holders at Odessa still demand higher prices.

Erie.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Sir Edward William Watkin, who has just returned from a personal inspection of the Erie railroad, has published his report, in which he describes the permanent way of the Erie railroad as quite equal to the standard of the United States, but the rolling stock he says is defective. The net revenue of the line is only 21 per cent. of the gross receipts, and the outstanding debts of the company are equal to about 14 months' profits. Sir Edward would not raise a new capital in the present state of the company's credit, but advises the bondholders to devote the earnings of the line toward paying off the debts, and to issue certificates for mortgage interest. President Jewett is highly spoken of, and bondholders are advised to support him to the utmost. A memorandum has been signed securing the English interest a substantial voice in the management of the company, promising to place the whole business on an intelligible footing.

Specie for America.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Fifteen thousand pounds sterling were withdrawn from the bank yesterday for America.

Doings of the Catholic Synod at Dublin.

DUBLIN, Sept. 20.—The synod of the Roman Catholic archbishops and bishops at Maynooth was concluded to-day. Cardinal Cullen, in his closing address, said the decrees passed were designed to counteract the increasing infidelity and lukewarmness in religion and revolution in politics. He hopes for good results. The synod gave particular attention to the subject of education of the young.

Carlists Get Themselves Neutralized.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—Three thousand Carlists have crossed the French frontier. They will be disarmed.

The Khokand Troubles.

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—A report has been received from Central Asia, that Khan Sade, eldest son of the deposed Khan of Khokand, had an interview with Gen. Kauffmann, and the latter is satisfied that Sade is not responsible for the recent hostilities against Russia. It is expected Russia will recognize Sade as the successor of his father in the Khanate, but whether the recognition will be accompanied with armed occupation of Khokand is uncertain. At last advices all was quiet there.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Ames to Pierrepont.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20.—The following text of a telegram from Gov. Ames to the attorney-general relating to affairs in Mississippi, was to-day made public:

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 11, 1875.

Attorney-General Pierrepont, Washington: The necessity which called forth my dispatch of the 8th inst. to the President still exists, and your question of yesterday repeated to-day asks for information which I gladly give. Violence is incident to the political contest preceding the coming election. Unfortunately the question of race, which has been prominent at the South since the war, has assumed magnified importance at this time, in certain localities. In fact the race feeling is so intense that protection for the colored by the white organizations is despaired of. A political contest made on the white line forbids it. The history of the colored people since reconstruction, and its bearing on the situation at this time, and a detailed statement of the trouble here, cannot be condensed in a telegram. This state has been opposed to organizing a militia of colored men. It has been believed by them that it would develop a war of races which would extend beyond the borders of this state. The organization of whites alone, where the issue is one of race, would be equally ineffectual. The most complete protection would be found in strict non-interference of the whites. Contradictions will be numerous. So they were last December, but the report of the congressional committee proved the correctness of my assertions. I am aware of the reluctance of the people of the country to national interference in state affairs, though if there be no violation of law there can be no interference. Permit me to express a hope that the odium of such interference shall not attach to President Grant or the Republican party. As governor of the state, I made the demand, which cannot well be refused. Let the odium, in all its magnitude, descend upon me. I cannot escape the conscientious discharge of my duty toward a class of American citizens whose only offense consists in their color. I am powerless to protect.

ADELBERT AMES.

United States to Hayti.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The U. S. steamer Powhattan, now at New York, will leave from there this week for Port au Prince, Hayti. In accordance with a request from the state department during some troubles on the island, a short time ago, the American minister there gave shelter to some of the parties, in consequence of which their adversaries threatened the minister, and the department deems it expedient to send a vessel there for protection, if necessary.

A party of forty men and officers had the munitions in charge, and were received by Cuban forces.

Under this act the company is granted the right of way through the public lands of the United States to the extent of 100 feet on each side of the central line of their road; also the right to take from the public lands adjacent to the same, material, earth, stone and timber necessary for its construction; also ground for station buildings, etc., not to exceed 20 acres for each station of every 10 miles. Marks goes over the Bay.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—In the supreme court to-day the case of ex-Harbor Commissioner John J. Marks came up on appeal from the municipal criminal court. Marks was sentenced on the 22d of May last to the state prison for a term of years. Counsel's motion for a new trial was denied, and an attempt to procure the prisoner's release on bail a few weeks ago failed. The case was then taken to the supreme court, which to-day affirmed the decision of the lower court. Marks will probably go over the bay in a few days.

THE GREAT SWIMMING FEAT.

[From the London Telegraph of Aug. 25.]

"Capt. Matthew Webb has to-day accomplished his great feat of swimming from England to France without having touched any support from the time when he dived off Admiralty pier, Dover, at 12:56 o'clock on Tuesday, until he landed himself on the Calais sands this morning at 10:41. This unparalleled effort occupied twenty-one hours and three-quarters.

At 12:56 P. M. on Tuesday, Capt. Webb dived from one of the steps at the end of the Admiralty pier and commenced to swim to the French coast. He was accompanied by a lugger and two row-boats. The lugger was in command of Mr. Toms, an experienced pilot, and in addition to the crew there were on board several representatives of the press, Mr. A. G. Payne, and Mr. H. F. Wilkinson, of Ilex Swimming club, who was deputed to see that the feat was carried out in a bona fide manner; and an expert diver, named Baker, to render service if it should be necessary. One row-boat kept constantly in front of the swimmer, to direct his course and supply refreshments, and in the bow of this, for the whole of the twenty-one and three-quarter hours, sat Mr. G. H. Ward, Capt. Webb's cousin, to watch his kinsman and attend to his wants. After dark one of the referees was continually in one of the row-boats. The other was used to communicate between the watch-boat and the lugger. The swim commenced at half-ebb tide, and for three-quarters of an hour Webb's course was southeast by south. His pace averaged twenty-six strokes to the minute. The ebb current carried him as far down channel as Lydden Spout, but meanwhile his powerful and methodical stroke had enabled him to propel himself nearly two miles in a direct line from the land. At 1:45 slack water commenced, and Webb being still fresh, he was able with this advantage to increase the direct distance between himself and the shore rapidly. His strokes now averaged twenty-two per minute, and that speed he continued regularly for several hours. At 2:30 a little rain fell, but it speedily passed off, and a quarter of an hour later the swimmer took his first refreshment, consisting of a small cup of ale. He took no solid food whatever while in the water, the only nutriment given him being coffee, ale, brandy, and beef tea. At 3 o'clock the flood tide began to be felt, drifting him northeast, although he always kept his face to the opposite coast. At 3:25 it was estimated that Webb was four miles from land and the sea was then as smooth as a pond. Another small cup of ale was handed to him at 3:40. At 4 o'clock the flood-tide had brought the captain back again abreast the point at which he started, and in the three hours it was reckoned that he had made a direct advance toward the opposite shore of four and a half miles. A thick haze at this time almost hid the heights of Dover, but the weather was warm and calm, and the sea perfectly smooth. When Webb had been at his task three and a half hours one of the referees inquired how he felt, and he responded 'All right,' whereupon the party in the lugger gave a ringing hurrah. The course continued to be influenced by the flood tide, and at 5 o'clock the bearings taken were: The Castle northwest by north, and the South foreland northwest. At 5:30 Webb reported himself to be getting on capitally, and he drank a small quantity of beef tea. Half an hour later he was told that two-thirds of the journey was accomplished, and he then took some beer and beef tea. That nutriment seemed to stimulate him, and for some time it taxed the powers of the rowers in the lugger to keep pace with him. After a stiff pull the lugger came alongside him, and those on board gave three cheers. The captain responded with the remark that he was doing well. At 6 o'clock we were a mile outside the South Sands Head lightship, and at that point a large screw steamship, the Ville de Malacca, passed uncomfortably close. The swimmer was watched from the poop with astonishment, but our hail was not answered. Soon after sunset the South Foreland lights appeared, bearing north northwest by north. At 7.30 Webb was spoken to again, and again he reported himself all right. At 7:45 a referee went into the row-boat. The light at Cape Grisnez became visible at 8:30, and it was then estimated that Webb was ten miles distant from the South Foreland light. The swimmer now took some warm coffee, and was reported to be as well as when he started.

Things went on well till 9:30, when Webb called out that he had been stung on the shoulder by a jelly-fish, and he asked for some brandy. At that time there was a perceptible weakening of his stroke, and it was feared that eight and a half hours in the water and the chilly air of the evening were beginning to tell upon him. A few moments later, however, he shouted that he was all right, and that he felt no more of the sting. The tide had been slack for him, and now turned toward the southwest. At that time the swimmer's position was, as nearly as possible, in a line between Deal and Calais, about mid-channel. Nothing worthy of note occurred up to 11 o'clock, when, on taking the bearings, it was reported that we were eight miles of Grisnez, nine from Calais, and twelve and a half from the South Foreland. The prospects of success were then considered very hopeful, and the probability discussed, of the task being finished in fourteen hours. In fact, a message was sent to Webb that if he should hold out four hours more he might expect to go ashore toward Cape Grisnez. He was much encouraged, and took some more hot coffee. At 11:50 the Calais mail steamer Maid of Kent came out of her course to pass within hail. The people on board cheered heartily, and the captain reckoned that Webb was thirteen and one-half miles from the nearest English land. At the turn of midnight the breeze freshened, and the course continued as before directed toward Cape Grisnez, but changed by the drift to the southwest. From 1 A. M. till 3 no noteworthy incidents occurred, except that about 2 o'clock the flood tide again affected the swimmer, and began to shape his course, it was found, for the projecting land about Cape Grisnez. At that time the reports were not reassuring. The pilot Toms was called to consult with Webb, and the referee reported that he was getting weaker. The diver prepared himself and took his seat in the row-boat ready for any emergency. Meanwhile a good dose of old brandy was administered. Webb called out 'All right,' and the diver dressed again.

Between 3 and 4 o'clock the hopes of touching the cape began to fade, for the light seemed to recede. A breeze sprang up in the east, and a ripple appeared on the water. The swimmer's progress was slow. Dawn appeared at 4 o'clock, when we lost the Cape Grisnez light altogether. We had indulged the hope that daylight would show Webb some land to cheer him; but for the next hour there was no more sign of land than if we had been in mid-ocean. A voice from the row-boat requested the skipper to get some hot bricks ready, which seemed ominous of failure. Probably the drowsy feeling that is generally felt toward dawn had affected the gallant captain. At any rate, at this time things looked rather gloomy. Some hot, strong coffee was administered, and shortly afterward the sun rose bright and warm. These cheering influences brought about a better state of things. Webb seemed to take heart, and shortly afterward, at 5:30, high land loomed through the mist. This land proved to be a bold point to the west of the seaside village of Sangatte. Webb was much gladdened on seeing it, and struck out bravely in that direction. The tide, however, was carrying us to the northeast, and the land seemed to get no nearer. At 6 A. M. the high land was left behind, and the village of Sangatte appeared right ahead. The brave fellow took some beef tea and coffee, and made another vigorous effort to gain the point; but a stiff breeze had arisen, and both wind and tide drove us toward Calais. The land seemed to remain about the same distance while we drifted toward Calais. An hour of weary watching followed; while Webb fought hard to make progress toward land. But the tide and wind were too strong, and Sangatte dropped away from us on our starboard. A waste of land stretching right up to Calais then became the land ahead. It was now 7:30. Webb had been in the water eighteen and a half hours. He was evidently thoroughly fagged, and much distressed by the waves beating in his face. The diver again got ready, and jumped in, swimming side by side with Webb for a while. The captain took some coffee, and the occupants of the lugger and boats gave him three cheers, which encouraged him. There now appeared to be a chance of touching the sandy shore about three miles from Calais, and the coveted goal looked only about a mile distant. The breeze increased, and the lugger had to tack to avoid running away from the swimmer. In passing him at 8 o'clock, he seemed dreadfully distressed, and the contrary wind and tide were buffeting him sorely. The point at which he was aiming seemed to drop away to the south, while the tide driving him toward Calais sands left him apparently as far from shore as he was an hour earlier. There is no doubt the flatness of the land was deceptive, for what was reported as a mile at 8:45 occupied nearly two hours in reaching.

How those two hours were spent it is hardly possible adequately to describe; but they were two hours of the greatest anxiety to those who were watching the efforts of the gallant swimmer, and of perfect torture to Webb, whose pale and haggard face told of thorough exhaustion; but his indomitable pluck would not allow him to give up with the prize so near. As he grew weaker the wind and tide became stronger, and still he held on with the most marvelous perseverance, although the sea was breaking over him and obstructing his movements toward the land. At 9:30 a large row-boat, with eight persons on board, came out and heartily applauded Webb, and, what was more valuable, they rowed on the weather side and saved the seas from breaking over him. Up to the last the excitement was most painful; for even when Webb was within two hundred yards of the shore it was feared his strength would not hold out to reach it. In strict accordance with the arrangements no one assisted him in the least; but every means were used to give him heart. On approaching the shore soundings were called out rather more favorable than the facts warranted. English and French alike cheered almost constantly, and, as a last encouragement, the rowers pushed down their long oars to show that they could touch the bottom. The excitement increased to the close, and when at last Webb did touch ground the men in the boats around him jumped into the water and fairly hugged him with delight. The news of his approach had spread in town, and a crowd ran down to shore to welcome him, while a carriage stood on the margin of the water ready to drive him to his hotel. On landing he was very weak, but, as the boatmen expressed it, 'jolly in his talk' up to the end. He was enveloped in wraps, and driven to the Hotel de Paris, where, after being well rubbed down, he drank three or four glasses of old port wine. He went to bed immediately, and slept soundly. There were several medical men ready to volunteer assistance at the hotel, but their services were not needed. On making inquiries before leaving by the boat I was told that Capt. Webb was sleeping.

Both in Dover and in Calais the success of the captain's feat has created great excitement, as nine out of ten of those who knew anything about the sea felt confident that he could not succeed. There is no question but that, had he started earlier, he would have accomplished his task much easier, as he would have avoided the bad weather at the close, for now a strong wind and a misty sea prevail in the channel.

THE CANDIDATES AT EUGENE.

EUGENE, Sept. 18, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The congressional candidates addressed the people of Lane county, at the court house, this afternoon. They had a full house, and were attentively listened to. The discussion was opened by Mr. Whitney, who, so conscious of the wrong that he intended to commit, went to our sheriff in advance of the meeting and requested him to be present, as he (Whitney) intended to open the discussion and he expected there would be a row kicked up by Mr. Warren. Mr. Warren very generously gave way to Mr. Whitney's demands to open, although he was, by previous arrangements, clearly entitled to the lead. Whitney took the position that both the political parties were corrupt, and carried his wholesale charges so far as to say that "even the best preachers become horse jockeys and would cheat their brother preachers out of horse, saddle and blanket." So far as this last charge is concerned, Whitney doubtless speaks from experience, he being a preacher, and we know of his trading horses several times. Mr. Whitney gave us no plan of reform except to support him for congress. The only issue he attempted to make with Mr. Warren and the Republicans was that of honesty, but at the same time he said he believed Mr. Warren to be an honorable gentleman, but he could not endure his politics, forgetting doubtless his own effort to secure the nomination by the Republican party. (See his telegram of Aug. 11th to Hon. Jason Owens, a delegate to the Republican convention.) Further on however, he whined considerably about the action of certain federal officials, as he styled them, who honeyfuggled him into sending that unfortunate telegram. His explanation of this matter was puerile in the extreme, and shows most conclusively that if two federal officials could so easily entrap him he would be a very unfit man to turn loose among the lobby at Washington.

Mr. Warren followed, making a very sensible speech, fully convincing the people that he was an honest man. He made many friends by his straightforward gentlemanly course, and left a favorable impression on the whole audience.

Mr. Dimick, followed in a thirty-five minutes' speech, presenting two ideas.

Mr. Lane closed the discussion with a bombastic Bourbon Democratic speech, affirming the State rights doctrine and free trade. Mr. Lane claims that all we have to sustain our common schools is the gift of the Democratic party. Ignorance will not excuse Mr. L. in misstating facts. The donation of the sixteenth section in every township was the work of the fathers of our country in 1787, the thirty-sixth was the work of the Whigs, aided by a few noble Democrats, under a Whig administration, in President Fillmore's time. He omitted to tell how the Democrats diverted $200,000 from the school fund for the construction of locks at the falls of the Wallamet. For consummate one-horse demagoguery, Mr. Lane has few superiors, but in true statesmanship he is utterly deficient. You may rely upon it that Lane county will render a good report in favor of Hon. Henry Warren on the 25th of October next.

The Independent publishes the following epitaph from a tombstone in Chautauqua county:

Neuralgia worked on Mrs. Smith
'Till 'neath the sod it laid her;
She was a worthy Methodist,
And served as a crusader.

Friends came, delighted at the call,
In plenty of good carriages;
Death is the common lot of all,
And comes more oft than marriages.

"THAT PENNSYLVANIA COLONY."

SALEM, Sept. 16, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Dear Sir: Having discovered a half column of very superior wisdom in the Walla Walla Union of Sept. 11th, which knows our business so much better than we ourselves, will you have the kindness to permit through your columns a word of commendation.

Evidently the Union is a paragon of smartness. We rejoice to find that while we lack that rare commodity called common sense, there is at Walla Walla a large supply of the uncommonest kind. It is hard to understand how so so much of wisdom could have accumulated there, except for the difficulty of getting it to market. And since it is so free as to be given away, no wonder we could not make even a short visit to the place, without being saluted as with a shower of bouquets on commencement day. Thanks!

We make our most graceful bow to the supremely august and respectful Walla Walla Union, and to those most generous and disinterested friends who for one long hour employed all their magnificent powers of blowing to produce some little spark of Eastern Washington patriotism in our unfeeling hearts.

It is a very superior commodity, this Walla Walla wisdom. It is victuals, drink and lodging in one. It is comfort, health and happiness. It is rain in the drought of summer. It is warmth in the ice of winter. It is greenness on the barren plain. It is a harvest on desert sands. It relieves all the sorrows of life. Do you wish to go there? and fancy it is 300 miles away, put on the Union's specs, look wise, and "you are most there now." The effect is like that of Jumelle Marine.

Does the little pocket railroad from Wallula look to you like a child's toy made to sell for two bits as a Christmas present for Charlie, read the Eastern Washington papers to emigrants, and it will suddenly become a great thoroughfare, with its Pullman palace coaches rolling in luxury toward the metropolis of the Blue Mountains. Do the sage brush and alkali, with the clouds of ashes covering you, and the dryness of your throat, your parched lips and smarting eyes, make it painfully apparent that you are passing over a great alkali desert? Fool that you are!

Were you wise as the Walla Wallians, you would see that, in the language of one of their blowers, "This is all good land!"

But alas! we we were so lacking in sense that we could not see these things, except according to the painful facts. We were so stupid as to discover that good land was more scarce and higher in price back there 300 miles from the sea, than in the great and wealthy Willamette valley. We saw that back in that country there were myriads of wheat that could not be got to market till the next year after it was harvested. We saw that the people had as wonderfully inflated sense of their advantages, while their drawbacks were so out of their sight that they were not fair in representing their country to strangers. Being required to find a good location near market and on water communication with the coast, or on a railroad line, and seeing what the Walla Wallaians' estimate of a railroad was, and discovering that we could not get within 50 miles of this one, such as it was, we saw at once inseparable barriers to settling our colony there. And the strongest evidence of our stupidity is that we made these discoveries so soon. Well, it was pretty quick work, especially for the profit of the hotels. They seem particularly grieved that we did not spend more money there. We are sorry for them. Money is what they need. Plenty of wheat, plenty of fruit, plenty to eat—we had a good dinner—but they need money—a great deal more than they will get in a long time. And we need sense. Yes, we are positively so stupid as respectfully to decline the generous offer of our Union friend; No, thank you, sir. We are not quite so hard up. We were chosen on this committee because it was believed we could weigh carefully and decide quickly, and we were limited to three months' time. We shall choose our location, report on time, and bring out our colony by the first week or so of November. If any are dissatisfied with our selection, we shall recommend them to go to Walla Walla as the surest means to bring them back contented.

It is due to say that we have been greatly aided in our herculean task by the officers of the state board of immigration, by the Oregon Steam Navigation Co., by the Northern Pacific R. R. Co., and by the Oregon and California R. R. Co., which have extended to us every courtesy, and given us all the information desired. Many individuals also have assisted us, and we are especially indebted for the kindly notices of the press, by which our way was opened to the people.

WASHINGTON COUNTY FAIR.

HILLSBORO, Sept. 19, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Your humble servant paid a flying visit to the fair grounds this morning, and found everything lovely as a smiling maid. The rain began to fall about 4 o'clock A. M., and up to the present writing kept coming down handsomely, so that the track, of which so much has been said, has received a handsome soaking; and myself, in company with the board of directors, went round the track to see for ourselves the condition it was in, and in all truth, backed by the board of directors, I must say the track is not half as bad as represented. From the entrance to the track down the back stretch, the center is heavy, but inside and out is as hard as any of our county roads, though springy underneath. From the second quarter home the track is in as good condition or better than I ever saw it since there has been a track, and we defy contradiction, the stories peddled around for the injury of the society to the contrary notwithstanding. The shape of the track does not suit trotting men in that the corners are not raised sufficiently on the outside, but it should be recollected that it takes money to do these things, and the society, like individuals, have to do the very best they can under the circumstances. Trotting men, like all other classes of persons, are busily engaged talking up their interests and working for their wants, which is considered by tattlers as a war on the society, which is wholly untrue. All owners of trotting horses understand the situation for this year, but are working for the future. The society is scarcely out of debt, and it is the policy of the present management, as well as the stock owners, as they are able, to make the whole ground, track and all, an ornament to the county and state and a pleasant place for the annual gatherings. The excellent advantages to track and grounds pointed out by Mr. Reed, one of the directors, are highly commended by the entire board, and will be carried out in another year. All admit that it is better to pay out a larger sum on the track and have it fixed, than to be always dribbling. But, so far as the track is concerned, all may rest assured that it will be hard enough to suit any and all for this fair.

WORK ON THE GROUND

Is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible in every department, so that all things may be in readiness for the fair. The wells are being cleansed, buildings erected, pens and stock sheds repaired for the reception of animals, and every effort made for the accommodation of all. Even outsiders who are so uncomfortable now over the society's affairs, shall be made happy if it takes a York shilling.

ARRIVALS.

Bybee and Bigham arrive to-day, bringing their full stables, including Foster, and in conversation with a gentleman to-day I was informed that Osceola would reach the Dalles to-night, in all probability, and come down on the boat on Monday; that that was the understanding between him and Coggan a few days ago, and at parting, "Good by, I shall meet you at the Washington County Fair," were Coggan's last words. I understand that stalls have been engaged for Coggan's horse by the same gentleman. The same as the above has been told me by another gentleman from La Grande, and is all I know about it. I am told that Nell Flaherty will be here to-day or to-morrow to add to the very tropical situation of affairs on the turf.

VISITORS.

On Saturday Mr. T. A. Davis and Mr. John Green came out on a flying visit to the Society grounds with Mr. Reed, and I am informed that Mr. Green has taken lots for the erection of large water and gas works; also Mr. Davis for the finest drug-store on the coast, and I suppose it is so, for I have the word from two very respectable men armed with hatchets.

About 300 persons were out on the grounds on Sunday, strolling about to see what they could see, whilst the secretary has been beset for two weeks past for stands by persons from all parts of the state.

Mr. Bailey, a resident of the Sandwich Islands, came out last week with a view of purchasing a running stallion, and picked Mr. Reed's "Autocrat," and thought he would give $500 for him as a runner, but when he was informed that the horse was a trotter, and that Mr. Reed would not trade even for the whole Islands, he left in a disgust, though he had a chance of buying Young's "Will Bigham," or "Allie," or Mr. Scoggins' "Jack Miner," either of which would have been a good selection for that place.

THE TERRITORIES.

A barber shop at Walla Walla was burglarized last week of $57 50.

A house at Walla Walla, belonging to Rev. H. K. Hines, was burned last week.

All of Robert Smalley's hay on the Touchet, near Walla Walla, was burned on the 3d inst.

Mr. E. A. Stevens has been appointed operator of the Western Union Telegraph Company at Olympia, in place of Miss Corts, who has been assigned to the charge of the Tacoma office.

Messrs. Foster & Rowe, of Olympia, have two booms of logs ready for the mills—one containing a million feet, not a log of which is less than forty feet long, and the other contains 700,000 feet.

The Puget Sound Baptist Association is making an effort to establish a high school, and material aid has been offered by the citizens of Seattle and Olympia for that object. The location of the school has not been yet determined.

Mr. Victor, the husband of Mrs. Frances Fuller Victor, the Pacific coast authoress, is going to start a fishery in Quartermaster's harbor, near Tacoma, on quite a large scale. Besides putting up fish and making oil, he intends to make isinglass and glue.

The first Episcopal church in Washington Territory was St. Luke's, of Vancouver; the second, St. John's, of Olympia; the third, St. Paul's, of Port Townsend; the fourth Trinity, of Seattle; the fifth, St. Paul's, of Walla Walla; the sixth, St. Andrew's, of Kalama; and the seventh and last, St. Peter's, of Tacoma.

The Seattle Tribune is informed by one of the Swinimish farmers that but little real damage was done the crops there by the recent bad weather, probably not more than five per cent. in the aggregate, and consisting chiefly of a trifling discoloring of the seed and the droppings from the bent-over heads of grain.

From different parts of the Sound country information is received that the grain, except in certain places, will not be damaged to the extent that was supposed it would be. This is good news, as their grain was the principal dependence of many farmers. The fine weather now is giving them an opportunity of securing any that may be out.

Judge W. C. Whitson, of Idaho, is lying very low at Rocky Bar in that Territory. On Monday of last week, he was too low to speak or hold any conversation. His head seemed to trouble him most from signs which he made. Drs. Newton and Marshall are attending him, but they say his system is entirely prostrated and they have great fears for his recovery.

W. H. Hartman and sons, of Nisqually bottom, are now in the midst of their hop picking. They have about ten acres, and hops are very large and thick. A measurement of six hills was made, and they yielded thirteen bushels. A large portion of the field will yield as much or more. Indians are employed to do the picking, for which they receive about five cents a bushel, and make good wages at it.

The following were the rates charged on the City of Panama on her last up trip from San Francisco: Passage to Victoria, $20 in the cabin and $10 in the steerage; to Port Townsend, $22 and $11; to Seattle and Tacoma, $24 and $12; to Portland and Astoria, $30 and $15. Freight to Victoria, $3 per ton; to Port Townsend, $4; to Seattle and Tacoma, $4 and $5; to Portland and Astoria, $7 per ton. These rates to Portland are the same as charged by Holladay's boats.

That grand hunt on the peninsula below, and near Olympia, has been set for Thursday, the 30th inst. Invitation is given generally to all who can to join in the hunt. It is extended to Portland, and all down Sound. All are invited to bring guns, and hounds for the occasion. Boats are expected to be in readiness for speedy crossing to the peninsula. Game of various kinds are said to be in abundance there. After the hunt a clam-bake and general good time are expected.

Mr. W. R. Ballard, who lately returned from government surveying east of the mountains, has shown us a specimen of gold quartz, from the Peshastin mines, on Swauk, a branch of the upper Yakima, in which Messrs. Shoudy & Dennis, of Ellensburg, are interested. The gold shows itself all over the specimen and is certainly very rich. Work is still going on in the Discovery claim at Swauk, and good pay being taken out when they keep on the lead, which it seems somewhat difficult to do.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

A 200 ton schooner was launched at Victoria last week.

Two candidates are out for the local house in Comox district. The defeat of Dr. Ash is considered certain.

Treasure shipped by Wells, Fargo & Co. per Salvador September 11, 1875, Bank of British North America, $25,510.

The Spring Ridge Water Works are closed and the company will be dissolved. It has had an existence for 11 years.

The election in Victoria district resulted in the choice of Messrs. Beavin, Douglas, Elliott, and Trimble to the provincial assembly.

On the 11th inst. a German named Charles Muller placed a double-barreled shotgun to his side at Stelly's farm, Saanich, and blew his stomach out.

The Colonist announces the complete rout of the Government forces in Esquimalt district and the triumphant return of Mr. Fisher and Mr. Williams over Mr. Weir and Mr. Foster, Government nominees, by sweeping majorities.

According to telegrams from Cariboo, last week's wash up from the Vancouver claim was 130 oz.; for the Victoria, 470 oz; and for the Van Winkle, 1,250 oz.—equal to about $22,000, or $2,100 per share for the week, clear of all expenses.

Lewis Bros., against whom the sheriff of New Westminster has brought a suit to recover $1,200 for expenses incurred in selling $250 worth of seized goods, have "flitted"—gone to live the remainder of their days "On the Rhine, on the Rhine!"

A boy recently found a pocket-book and returned it to its owner, who gave him a five-cent piece. The boy looked at the coin an instant, and then handed it reluctantly back, audibly sighed as he said: "I can't change it."

I. O. G. T.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SIXTH ANNUAL SESSION OF THE GRAND LODGE OF WASHINGTON AND BRITISH COLUMBIA, HELD AT OLYMPIA, W. T., SEPT. 15, 16, 17, 1875.

Fourth Day—Morning Session.

OLYMPIA, Sept. 18, 1875.

Grand Lodge opened in subordinate degree, Bro. Crawford, G. W. C. T. presiding. Minutes of yesterday's session read and approved.

The grand worthy chief templar then proceeded to install Grand Chaplain, John Rea, who was absent at the hour of installation yesterday.

The report of the finance committee was then read and adopted, and warrants were ordered drawn in favor of representatives, for expenses, amounting to $201 72.

The committee on grand lodge organ reported, recommending a subsidy be granted the Echo, of $250, by this Grand Lodge, payment of the same to be made through the executive committee.

On the second day's session a committee had been appointed to investigate and report upon certain differences said to exist between two members of the Grand Lodge, J. N. Gale and J. H. Munson. The committee brought in a report to-day stating their inability to arrive at any conclusion, and referring the matter back to the Grand Lodge for action.

F. Kennedy, chairman of special committee on redistricting the jurisdiction, presented a report as follows:

That district No. 1 consist of mainland of British Columbia; No. 2, Vancouver Island, B. C.; No. 3, counties of Jefferson, Clallam and the territory along the coast of Chehalis county, W. T.; No. 4, the counties of Whatcom, San Juan and Island; No. 5, counties of King, Kitsap and Snohomish; No. 6, counties of Pierce, Thurston and Lewis; No. 7, counties of Mason, Chehalis, Pacific and Wahkiakum; No. 8, counties of Clarke and Cowlitz; No. 9, county of Skamania; No. 10, counties of Klickitat and Yakima; No. 11, county of Walla Walla; No. 12, counties of Stevens and Whitman. The report was adopted.

Bro. Kennedy also moved a resolution, which was adopted, that each subordinate lodge appropriate the sum of 25 cents yearly on each member, the same to be applied to lecture purposes.

A recess was then declared till 1:30 P. M.

Afternoon Session.

The Grand Lodge was called to order at the hour appointed, the G. W. C. T. presiding.

J. V. Crawford and S. D. Maxon were unanimously elected fraternal delegates to the Grand Lodge of Oregon, and Sister M. E. Bond was elected superintendent of Juvenile Temples.

It was moved and carried that the next session of the Grand Lodge be held on the third Wednesday of September, 1876, at 2 o'clock P. M.

A vote of thanks was then returned to Tacoma Lodge No. 4 for the use of their hall, and to the inhabitants of Olympia for their hospitalities to the members of the Grand Lodge.

A resolution was presented by Bro. Hewitt asking that a committee of three be appointed to examine into and ascertain if the directions of the Grand Lodge requiring advertising for proposals for all printing was complied with, and what percentage, if any, was paid by the printer of the proceedings of the last Grand Lodge, and to whom paid, and report the facts as they find them to this Grand Lodge. The resolution was adopted but no committee appointed.

It was moved and carried that this Grand Lodge pay its officers (not representatives) for attendance in the same proportion as representatives.

It was then moved and carried that the Grand Lodge resolve itself into committee of the whole to take into consideration the matter of "trouble in the order."

The Grand Lodge then formed itself into committee of the whole, the G. W. C. T presiding as chairman, and after being in session half an hour, the committee rose and reported, but the report failed to be adopted.

A resolution was then passed returning the thanks of the Grand Lodge to the N. P. R. R. Co., O. S. N. Co. and Capt. Starr, of the steamer North Pacific, for their kindness and liberality in carrying the officers and representatives of the Grand Lodge at half fares to and from Olympia.

A resolution was passed that this Grand Lodge request J. N. Gale, late G. W. Sec., to publish a statement in the public press that J. H. Munson was not the person referred to in his communication in the Echo as having squandered the Grand Lodge funds.

On motion, the minutes were read and approved, and the Grand Lodge of Washington Territory and British Columbia was declared adjourned sine die.

FARMING ITEMS.

Wheat sells at Walla Walla at 52½ cents per bushel.

Mr. Raymond, of Douglas county, recently sold a white Percheron colt, two years old, for $400.

A letter from Wasco county says the weather is fine, harvest over, stock all fat and the general health is good.

Large quantities of wheat from Umatilla county are being hauled to the Walla Walla and Wallula railroad.

THE ARMIES OF EUROPE.

At the present moment remarks an exchange, any information as to the armies of Europe is particularly interesting. M. Amedee le Faure publishes in the La France a complete analysis of the military strength of the various nations in 1875. Germany, it appears, has an army comprising 469 battalions of infantry, 465 squadrons of cavalry, 300 campaign batteries, 29 battalions of fort artillery, 18 battalions of pioneers, and 18 battalions of service corps. When are added the reserves, the landsturm, the landwehr, and the navy, a total of 1,700,000 men is arrived at, with annual estimates of £20,000,000. The English army and navy, including militia and volunteers, comprise 535,000 men, and cost £24,800,000; Austria has 535,000 men, costing £10,800,000; Belgium, 43,000 men, with an expenditure of £1,650,200; Denmark, 54,000 men, costing £366,000; Spain, according to the regulations of 1870, possesses 270,000 men, with a yearly budget of £6,400,000. The law passed by the Cortes in 1872 has as yet been imperfectly applied. France has 152 regiments of infantry, 30 battalions of chasseurs, 77 cavalry regiments, 40 regiments of artillery, 4 of engineers, and 20 squadrons of service corps. With the reserve and navy the total effective strength of the country is 1,700,000, costing £26,800,000; Greece 51,000 men, and estimate £360,000; Italy, 760,000 men, expenditure £9,840,000; Holland, 100,000 men, estimate £1,120,000; Portugal, 73,000 men, costing £180,000; Russia has an army in time of peace of 188 regiments of infantry, 82 battalions of riflemen, 48 battalions for frontier service, 56 regiments of cavalry, 310 batteries of artillery, 14 battalions of engineers, besides irregulars and reserves. With the fleet, the effective strength of the country is 1,550,000 men, with a budget of £27,200,000; Sweden, 160,000 men, costing £1,120,000. The effective strength of Switzerland is approximately 130,000 men, costing only £260,000; Turkey, 300,000 men, with estimates of £5,680,000. On a war footing, therefore, the armies of Europe are 9,333,000 men, costing annually £136,804,000.

In the Plymouth, Mass., museum there is a piece of Pilgrim needlework, embroidered with colored silk, now sadly faded, in 1655, by a daughter of Captain Standish, and bearing this devout prayer:

"Lorea Standish is my name.
Lord, guide my heart that I may doe thy will;
Also fill my heart with such convenient skill,
As may conduce to virtue, void of shame—
And I will give the glory to thy name."

They say that the reason why the ladies like the late style broad-rim hats, is that they throw such a shadow around the neck as to make it feel like some fellow's arm.

The Daily Oregonian.

TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 21, 1875.

THAT OATH.

For some time past the Democratic organ of this city has been publishing, in as many different forms as it could be dished up, a statement that Henry Warren, in 1855, took an oath in a Know-nothing lodge that he was a native-born citizen of the United States, whereas the fact was that he was a foreign-born and naturalized citizen. The public were told through the organ that the original oath, bearing the signature of Warren, could be seen at the office of that paper by any one who doubted the truth of the statement. It is not difficult to perceive the inducement of the Journal to the publication of such a statement, if the truth would bear it out, as the Journal is leading the opposition to Warren's election; but it is difficult to see why the statement should have been made if untrue, and equally so to understand why, after making it, the Journal should turn round and produce the evidence of its falsity, which, presumably at least, no one else possessed. Yet such has been the course of the Lane organ, in yesterday's edition of which the alleged oath appears, containing not a word or syllable that could be tortured by any possible construction into a declaration that he was a native-born citizen. That all may see that we state but the strict truth, we present the oath as given by the Journal:

> I, Henry Warren, kneeling before God, my Maker, my left hand upraised toward Heaven, to all these and those do I most sincerely promise, declare and swear, binding myself under no less a penalty than that of having my grave trampled on by foreigners, and to have my memory cursed by my children and my children's children.

Since the Journal is thus self-convicted of publishing an untruthful charge against Warren, it is not at all improbable that the story is a fabrication from beginning to end, and that Warren never did in fact take the ridiculous and foolish obligation set forth. Assuming that this is the obligation which was required of candidates for the mysteries of Know-nothingism (concerning which we cannot speak with that authority which the personal knowledge of the editor of the Journal seems to give him), then the question whether Warren took the obligation depends, of course, on whether Warren was a Know-nothing; and on this point the public has not the slightest evidence, the only witness of the fact being shown to be false in one material particular, and therefore presumed, under a familiar rule of evidence, to be false in all particulars. It is easy to see how the form of the Know-nothing obligation should have come into the possession of the Journal; for, aside from the experiences of the editor, it is an historical fact that a very large number of the Democratic politicians, whose organ the Journal is, were active and leading Know-nothings, and this not alone in Oregon, but wherever the Know-nothing party existed. It was essentially an organization of Democrats, the other parties furnishing a comparatively small proportion of the membership. If Warren took the silly obligation (which, we repeat, is not asserted by any unimpeached witnesses), he has lots of Democratic company, and of the very top of the Democratic heap at that. The matter is of no consequence at this time, one way or another, but the unfairness of the course of our Know-nothing friends of the Journal, in making a great ado about an alleged wrong, when they were in fact the leaders in it, justifies this exposition.

RETRENCHMENT IN PRACTICAL OPERATION.

The comparative statement which we publish this morning of the tax levies for the past three years furnishes the strongest possible evidence of the wisdom of the people in making the issue in the election of 1874 one of local interest and economical administration of the affairs of the community. The levy in September of that year was based on a very considerable reduction in the expenses of the county, and though at that time the court could not have been certain as to the extent to which reduction might be found practicable, as they had been scarcely long enough in office to become fully acquainted with the condition of the county's finances. The effort for retrenchment was entirely successful. And now there is a further reduction in the levy for county purposes. The levy for state and school purposes are fixed by statute. The levy which has just been made shows a further reduction, and the county levy now is just 66 2-3 per cent. of that of 1873. This is certainly a very good showing for the people and a higher commendation of the vigilance and prudence of Judge Woodward and Commissioners Hansen and Holman than any words we could add.

THE JOURNAL MISUNDERSTANDS.

Our Democratic neighbor mistakes us very much when he says we think all Democrats are bad men. So far from this, we think a great many of them are very good men, and a sense of justice compels us to say the party has given the people a few very good officers. Gov. Tilden, of New York, for instance, is making an excellent chief magistrate of the greatest State in the Union; and the executive of our own state is a respectable citizen and exemplary gentleman, and, excepting a weakness in one of his upright timbers, a good Governor. The thing we complain of the Democratic party for just now, is, mainly, that, unless appearances are very deceiving, they have entered into an alliance with the opposers of a free, unsectarian system of public education. We have no idea that the masses of the party would knowingly endorse such an alliance. But the masses are largely in the hands of the politicians, and are now being used to build up and strengthen unwittingly an influence which, should it obtain control, would undermine republican liberty by destroying its main stay and support—the free school system.

By our Eugene letter it will be seen that the people of Oregon are having an opportunity for a personal inspection of all the four candidates for congress. If there are any who cannot suit themselves with a choice now it is hard to imagine a combination of circumstances that would enable them to do so. Republican, Democrat, Independent, Prohibitionist, anybody can be fitted out, and the intelligent voter who is looking more at personal character than political associations can choose among the lot. And all shades of religion are pretty well represented too. Mr. Lane is an ardent Catholic, Mr. Warren a leading member of the Baptist Church, Mr. Whitney a minister of the Christian denomination, and Mr. Dimick a prominent Methodist. And the same latitude of opportunity is offered those who think the temperance question should be considered from a political standpoint. Dimick is a tetotaler and a member of the Temperance order; Whitney is a Temperance man; Warren is temperate, but belongs to none of the societies, and Lane indulges in the social glass. Let no man say that he cannot be accommodated with a candidate after his own heart this time.

If Mr. Theodore Tilton would consult his own interests he would direct his counsel to dismiss his case against Beecher, instead of having it continued from term to term on the calendar of the court. It is generally understood the prosecution of it was not commenced for the purpose of making money; and if that had been the object it has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of all rational minds, that no verdict can be obtained. Whatever could be accomplished in the way of vindicating his conduct by a judicial investigation, has been accomplished. There is, then, no reason, public or private for the further prosecution of the suit; and the people at large certainly have no desire to see the floodgate reopened. Let it die, and let the criminal prosecutions involving the same facts die with it, and then let the whole nasty mess be forgotten excepting so far as it affords a lesson to the world on the subject of the relationship between pastor and people.

Among all the extraordinary storms that have visited the United States this year, no other has been so remarkable as that which lifted the waters of the Gulf into the town of Galveston last week, the particulars of which will be found in this morning's dispatches. All the poetical exaggeration of the "High Tide at Lincolnshire" is realized and more than realized in this fearful visitation. People who have spent most of their lives in Oregon have little idea of the violence of the hurricanes that sweep over the States east of the Rocky mountains; but none of the experiences of the past, on that side, even, have prepared the mind to form any adequate conception of a wind sufficient to drive the sea up into the city and carry away large buildings.

Mr. Walt. M. Fisher, lately editor of the Overland Monthly has retired from the editorial chair of that magazine and gone to England, his native land.

The Vancouver Independent has the following personal item:

> Hon. Willis Drummond, ex-commissioner of the general land office, arrived in town on Thursday. The distinguished visitor, expressed himself as highly pleased with Vancouver, our broad Columbia and the genial climate of this season. Judge Drummond is the man who acted as an attorney for the city of Vancouver in the recent contest with the Mission claimants, and who finally secured for the city the townsite patent from the government.

The Enterprise devotes nearly a column to prove that Hon. Henry Warren is a corrupt man, because he voted for the bill making sheriffs tax collectors. We will only say that this bill has not yet been changed, whether it was wise or unwise; and Mr. Lane, happening to be in the legislature that session, also voted for the bill. Examine journal of the house for 1864, page 214.—Roseburg Plaindealer.

CITY.

LETTER CARRIER.—Although the new postoffice building is superior in all its appointments to the one hitherto occupied by the department, yet on account of its remoteness from the trade centres of the city, many of our business men would have preferred to retain it in its old quarters. This objection, we are happy to state, will soon be removed, for the accommodation of the business public, on and after the 24th of the present month. Mr. E. T. Howes will convey from the postoffice all letters, packages, parcels, etc., to the stores and offices of those who will bestow upon him the requisite authority. The sum of one cent for each letter or paper and two cents for each package, will be charged for delivering the same. Mail matter will be distributed twice each day from 7 to 9 A. M., and from 5 to 7 P. M. Tickets of the value of one cent each will be issued in order to facilitate the making of "change." This is a great convenience at a trifling cost, and we have no doubt that our business men will aid in its support. Mr. H. will call on our citizens to-day and secure the names of those wishing to avail themselves of this privilege.

DIED OF SECONDARY HEMORRHAGE.—We regret to announce the death of the lad Ed. Thorpe, who was accidentally shot some days ago, while out hunting with a comrade in the vicinity of Milwaukie. The lad died on Sunday morning of secondary hemorrhage. On the day following the casualty, the lad's arm was amputated just below the shoulder, and, although he came near dying under the operation from physical exhaustion consequent upon great loss of blood and shock to the system, he soon rallied. Strong hopes were entertained of his recovery, and in fact, the boy was thought to be comparatively beyond danger, until within a few moments previous to his death. Sunday morning the brachial artery which, at the time of the amputation, was carefully tied up, suddenly, and without warning, sloughed off, and notwithstanding every possible effort was made to save the lad's life, he bled to death in a very few minutes. The sad bereavement falls with peculiar weight on fond parental hearts. Parents and friends of the hapless boy have the sympathies of the community.

NEW POSTOFFICE—GREAT RUSH.—From the hour of opening the doors of the new postoffice yesterday morning, a long line of people moved towards the window to engage new boxes and the clerks were kept busy in marking the names on those selected. By 4 o'clock nearly all who applied were accommodated, but in the hurry of marking the boxes and the changes made by owners of boxes in the selection of the same, the clerks, though ordinarily "up in the business," were somewhat mixed, resulting in tardy distribution. This, in addition to the extra tramp of those accustomed to the old office, caused many to give expression to their feelings by continued growling. In a day or two the clerks will get matters in shape for more rapid distribution, and by the end of the week everything will work harmoniously. The change from the old office to that of the new is so great that many will find it irksome to make more than one trip to the office daily. We would suggest that the lamps opposite the entrances to the postoffice, at least, be lighted on these dark nights.

LINE OVERHAULED.—Two men will leave the city this morning at an early hour, and commence the work of giving the O. S. N. Co.'s telegraph line between Portland and Walla Walla a thorough overhauling. They will be abundantly supplied with provisions, tools, repairing material, etc. The party commencing on the east side of the river will follow the line up clear through to the Dalles. New insulators will take the place of the old, the wire will be supplied wherever it is necessary, the poles straightened up, and overhanging branches and brush cut away. One month will probably be required to reach Walla Walla. It is the intention of the O. S. N. Co. to place their line in first class condition by the time Platt Burr completes his line from Iver City to Walla Walla, which will be about the 1st of October.

STATE FAIR POSTER.—Mr. E. M. Waite, secretary of the State Agricultural Society, has forwarded to this office a very large poster of the fifteenth annual State Fair, which will commence on the grounds near Salem on Monday, Oct. 11th, and continue for six days. The poster, in question, is one of the handsomest which we have yet seen, being executed in the highest style of the typographical art. Good taste and a thorough knowledge of printing is displayed in the poster before us, and as a work of art it is a credit to any state.

CELLAR AND WAREHOUSE.—The fine brick cellar and warehouse commenced some weeks ago by Messrs. Nat. H. Lane & Co., of East Portland, are both completed, and are ready for use. We are informed that it is the intention of the firm to construct, next season, a handsome and substantial brick store on the site occupied by the wooden building which at present being used by them.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES.—Mr. Chas. Grant, who it will be remembered, was a deckhand on board the ill-fated steamer Senator, at the time of the explosion, has commenced suit in the State circuit court against the O. S. N. Co., for personal injuries sustained by reason of the boiler bursting. He lays his damages at $10,000.

SUIT DECIDED.—The law suit of Chas. McGinn vs Wm. Wolf, which has been pending in the State circuit court, was decided yesterday. Mr. McGinn obtained judgment against the defendant for $1,193 80 coin.

TAXATION.

WHAT IT COSTS TO BE GOVERNED—GREAT REDUCTION IN THE LAST TWO YEARS.

An examination of the journal of the county court and the assessment rolls for the last three fiscal years will serve to indicate the gradual reduction in the rate of taxation, and presents the following comparative showing: During the year 1873, the total valuation of the county was $10,801,632. Rate of taxation levied by the county court as follows: State purposes, 5 mills; school purposes, 3 mills; county purposes, 7½ mills; total, 16 mills. The following year—1874—the total valuation of the county was estimated at $9,963,210. The rate of taxation was as follows: State purposes, 3½ mills; school purposes, 3 mills; county purposes, 6½ mills; total, 13 mills. For the present fiscal year—1875—the assessment roll shows a total valuation of $9,450,000, with rate of taxation as follows: State, 6¼ mills; school, 3 mills; county, 5 mills; total, 14¼ mills. While for State purposes 1 mill more is required than in 1873, or 1874, still the total levy is 3 mill less than 1874, and 1½ less than 1873. The state and school tax is fixed by law, of course, no change could be made by the commissioners. For county purposes in 1875, the rate of taxation is 2½ mills less than in 1873, and in 1874, at the same time the total valuation is nearly 1½ millions less. While much of this is due to the vigilance of the commissioners under the Independent regime, still Hon. J. H. Woodward, county judge, has contributed in no small degree to bring about this important reduction in the county expenditures.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

Mrs. Burns, who was arraigned on a charge of throwing water on a Chinaman, entered a plea of guilty and paid a fine of $5.

D. Lesen, for contempt of court in failing to appear as a witness, when summoned, was committed to the county jail for five days.

John Doe, arrested on complaint of Cecelia Levy, charged with grand larceny, was, on motion of the district attorney, discharged, the evidence being considered insufficient to warrant the court in holding the defendant.

The cases of State vs Mollie Cotton and Mike Sullivan, charged with committing grand larceny, were called for a preliminary hearing. After hearing the testimony in the cases, the court took the matter under advisement until this morning.

The following dead drunks were disposed of: John Harris, committed to jail for three days in default of paying a fine; Frank Austin, fined $5 and liquidated the same; Wm. Colburn, sent below three days in default; J. Brown, fined $5, paid same and was discharged; J. Buckley, committed to jail three days; Quinn and J. Sass were both sent to jail in default of paying their fines, three days each.

A great number of the Chinese merchants are now doing business in brick houses.

Eight head of nice fat beef cattle were brought down last evening on the Dalles boat.

Mr. Welsh won the match at the shooting tournament at the White House last Saturday.

Orders left at the postoffice in East Portland for our carrier will meet with prompt attention.

A new sidewalk is being laid on the north side of F street, just west of the Clarendon Hotel.

The public school of East Portland is well attended, and is said to be in a flourishing condition.

The Katie Ladd now lies beached on the eastern shore of the river—preparatory to being overhauled.

The Good Samaritan Hospital will be formally thrown open for the reception of patients on the 9th proximo.

Yesterday morning the steamer Annie Stewart arrived here from Astoria, having in tow the ship City of Cashmere.

Persons failing to receive the OREGONIAN at their office or residence will please give immediate notice at this office.

Foreman Jordan, of No. 3 Fire Company, has been presented with an elegant pin by Capt. Auld, of the City of York.

Prof. Williamson has charge of the Public School in District No. 2, near Brooklyn. Forty scholars are in daily attendance.

It is said that there is considerable inquiry for dwelling houses in East Portland—an encouraging indication of prosperity.

LaChapelle, the boat builder, will commence this week to build a sail-boat exceeding the Oregonian in length by at least four feet.

Mr. G. W. Weidler is the fortunate possessor of a Scotch terrier which killed, during Saturday night, 13 rats on the O. S. S. Co.'s dock.

A nugget of gold weighing five ounces, recently taken from the Swauk mines, in the Yakima country, is now on exhibition in this city.

Capt. John Smith, of the Warm Springs Indian reservation, is at present in the city purchasing fall supplies for the "Injuns" under his charge.

A cotemporary says: "All that remained of the ill-fated steamer Senator was consumed by fire on Monday last." Guess not. Look again, neighbor.

"Little Mollie," the fleet-footed mare that won the race at the White House, last Saturday, carried off the purse in two straight heats in 2:40½ and 2:41½.

Capt. B. B. Tuttle, formerly of Olympia, has been appointed by the postmaster general route agent on the Columbia river between Portland and Astoria, Oregon.

Work on the three copies of the assessment roll for this county, is being prosecuted with all vigor, and they will probably be completed by the last of the present week.

Johnny Kearney, a young man well known in this city, wishes it distinctly understood that he is not the person mentioned in the evening paper as being arrested for larceny.

The roof of a house on Fourth street, between Stark and Oak, caught fire yesterday forenoon from a burning flue. The fire was extinguished before an alarm was sounded.

The handsome little yacht Oregonian, launched a few weeks ago by LaChapelle, seems to be a very popular pleasure craft, judging from the frequent calls made for her.

While some men were engaged in excavating for a roadway in the southern end of the city, on Saturday afternoon, a portion of the embankment caved in, slightly injuring one of the men.

According to the statistics of imports into this city, published by the Commercial Reporter, there were imported into this city for the first six months of the present year 13,401 boxes candles. And yet our citizens declare that they do not get enough light. Turn on the gas.

NOTABLE MEETING.

In the year 1847, in the north of Ireland, James McGuire was born, and when quite young he emigrated to the United States and settled in the colony of Virginia, where he married one Anna Goodwin, and raised a large family of ten daughters and two sons. He was a soldier in the continental army during the entire war of independence, taking part in many of the most notable battles, escaping without so much as a scratch. After the close of the war, he removed to Kentucky, his being one of the very first families that found a home in that, then, vast unknown wilderness. Here his children all grew up to manhood and womanhood, and here he died at a ripe old age, about the year 1837. His children all married and raised large families of sturdy men and industrious women, and they, in their turn, have been gathered to their fathers, except two girls, who, for the first time in over thirty years, met and embraced each other at the house of the youngest son of one of the sisters, in Washington county of this state. The eldest is Mrs. Sarah A. Stott, more familiarly known as Grand Mother Stott, being 98 years old, and having come to this state with her two sons, James M. Stott, who is well and favorably known in this county, having for many years resided on the Sandy river, and being a property owner in this city, and Samuel J. Stott, a well known citizen of Washington county. The younger of the sisters is Mrs. Fanny Gilpin, who has just arrived in this state with her husband, Mr. William Gilpin, who is over 70 years of age. Mr. and Mrs. Gilpin have crossed the continent this summer with their children and their families, in all over 30 persons, in the good old style of '49 and '50, i. e., with their wagons and teams.

After their long separation the sisters met on Saturday last at Mr. Samuel J. Stott's residence, in the midst of their descendants, over 60 people in all, (children, grand children, great grand children), and they, the descendants, but two out of a family of 12, each with equally large families. Truly the one they spoke of tearfully as father was indeed one of the founders of our country. Mr. R. Stott, the attorney of that name of this city, (one of the grand children), went out to his father's residence on Saturday last to be present at the reunion of the aged sisters. The meeting was a happy though an affecting one.

Although so old, the sisters are both strong and healthy, and give promise of many years of usefulness and happiness yet to come.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Mrs. H. Ach announces a second reduction in the prices of damaged goods. The opportunity to buy is open for a few days longer. Take advantage of it.

DeLashmutt & Oatman are out in a brilliant advertisement to-day. They are live men, and know how to use printer's ink to advantage. If you wish anything in the brokerage line call on them.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Seth A. Abbey, for over forty years a resident of Cleveland, Ohio, and eight years police judge of that city, has recently arrived in this state and expects to remain here. He is father to Kit Abbey, of Benton county, who has been a resident of Oregon nearly as long as anybody has, and whom he had not seen for 31 years before his arrival here.

COMING.—The steamer John L. Stephens, with a full cargo and large list of passengers. Among the cargo we learn that a large share is consigned to Beck & Waldman, the well known clothiers. This will be good news to their patrons.

NOTES FROM ASTORIA.

Under date of September 19th, our regular correspondent sends the following:

Ship Florida arrived in ballast, this morning, to load grain.

Steamship Oriflamme was detained by fog from proceeding to sea, until 8 o'clock A. M. Sunday.

The funeral of Mrs. C. L. Parker, whose unexpected demise after a short but severe sickness occurred on the morning of the 18th inst., took place this afternoon. The funeral service of the Episcopal church was conducted at the house of the deceased, by the Rev. Thomas Hyland, with the aid of an efficient choir, and was listened to by a large and attentive assemblage of sorrowing mourners, to whom the departed had signally endeared herself as an exemplary wife and mother, a devoted friend and a kind neighbor. A large procession accompanied the remains to her final earthly resting place, where they await the morning of a glorious resurrection, while the sorrowing and bereaved husband and motherless children have only this blessed hope and the heartfelt sympathies of the entire community to console them for the deep loss they have sustained.

Interesting services have been held in the Congregational church here to-day. Rev. Frederick Crang (who has lately assumed the pastorate of this church) and Rev. P. S. Knight, of Salem, conducted the meeting in the evening, and it was announced as preparatory to a series of meetings to be held during the week under the auspices of a band of laymen connected with the Young Men's Christian Association of your city, who have signified their intention, as well as their willingness, so far as they may be able, to supply the loss this community may have sustained through the inability of Bro. Hammond, the revivalist and Evangelist, to visit them during his recent stay in Oregon. Believing their motives to be good and true, seeking for the emancipation of their fellow-men from the shackles of vice and consequent misery into the glorious liberty of a gospel of peace, which inculcates the practice of all that is good and pure, and is consequently calculated to redeem man from that misery and degradation which sin and vice entails, the Christians of Astoria assembled at this meeting, expressed their grateful pleasure at the contemplated visit of the brethren from Portland, realizing, as they do, their need of all the counteracting influences they can bring to bear against the floodgates of infidelity and the numerous influences for evil which are so demoralizing to the youth of both sexes, and which it is to be deeply regretted, have lately been so much on the increase in this growing town.

YOUNG CRIMINALS.

A Paris correspondent of the Globe-Democrat writes:

A revolting trial has just been concluded before the Seine assizes—the trial of "Le Jaune" and his band for the assassination of an aged widow in the Rue Vaugirard. "Le Jaune" is the slang name of a youth named Maillot, who has been chief for several years of a band of youthful malefactors. The young villains have undergone a variety of condemnations, but had never shed blood until they attempted to rob the old woman in the Rue Vaugirard, and were compelled to murder her to insure their escape. The police succeeded in securing all who were implicated in the crime, and the trial has just been concluded. It was a dreadful scene. The young scoundrels, who were of the most degraded type, were submitted to that terrible ordeal—a duel at words with the judge of instruction. The wretched children—for some of them were really children—ensnared themselves, broke into paroxysms of tears and sobs, implored mercy, lost all control of their cunning, and furnished the newspapers with the most agonizing sensational reports. But neither prayers nor tears were of avail. Three of the band, including the leader, were condemned to death; one was sent to the galleys for life, another for twenty, and yet another for fifteen years; and other members of the gang received lighter sentences. There is some fear—I say fear because the mass of the French people are very unrelenting with regard to criminals—that Marshal MacMahon may pardon those condemned to death; but it is not probable.

Advertising pays. A Toledo man advertised for a servant girl, and one of his three wives knocked at the door in less than five hours after the paper was out.

The Philosophy of Disease.

The philosophy of disease is a subject which is worthy the attention of mankind, but is, unfortunately, more generally neglected than any other under heaven. Decidedly the most important fact that an examination of it discloses is that in nine cases out of ten, the originating causes of disease is debility, either general or local, and that the earliest manifestations of its approach are identical with those which evidence a lack of vital power. Such being the case, it is perfectly clear that tonic treatment is what is required in the first instance. As an invigorant, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has received the most positive endorsement from eminent physicians, and has long occupied a foremost rank among standard proprietary remedies. Its properties as an alterative of disordered conditions of the stomach, liver and bowels, and a preventive of malarial diseases, are no less renowned, and have been accorded professional recommendation equally emphatic.

Like "Quaker Guns"

Artificial teeth are of little use and easily detected. Take care of the real ones. All you need is fragrant Sozodont; use it daily and your teeth will be the last of nature's gifts to fail you.

Lung troubles must be treated at once. Neglect of them brings sorrow, pain and regret. Thousands have told of the almost miraculous effects of WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. For coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all lung troubles, it is unequaled.

"A Slight Cold," Coughs.—Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough or "slight cold," which would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, often attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches," give sure and almost immediate relief.
